iOpener Webinar Series: Communicating Virtually

We're inviting managers and leaders just like you who find yourselves catapulted into unknown territory, and wondering whether there's a compass to find your way through. The analogies are many that we can draw on to describe today's marketplace of radical change and disruption.

Are your people looking to you, on their laptop screen, for guidance and reassurance. Can you give it to them? And how?

This series of five sessions over five weeks is perfect for all managers and leaders who know that their communication style is business-critical more than ever. You will be guided through the program by your accomplished workshop facilitator. But you won't just learn from your facilitator. You'll be learning from one another in a live virtual classroom using technology to connect. It's the future of learning for today's environment.
